The coolish and cloudy weather made this meet a lot more fun. Our first event on this map since four ball fields were built showed enough area remains for a small orange course. Ludwig has honed map details, but we might want to consider having an official sprint map made from scratch of this city park if we want higher quality.

Remember-O saw its Tucson debut. Created by Alan Hubsch of LAOC, orienteers took their map but not their control cards out on the course, returning to the start to record control codes found. Among people finding all 25 controls, one person returned 4 times to record while one recorded all in a mighty effort after finding them all. Creating a sentence using the code as the initial letter in each word and using the “C is for cat” approach for each control were memory techniques used. Amazingly, only two controls of all recorded were wrong. Sorry about the misplacement of #18. I was very gratified to see how much fun people had with this style course. It’s perfect for small areas with a lot of features. The Memory-O controls are stored with the regular controls for anyone who would like to add this style course on to an event.

Lincoln Park is used by many walkers and is surrounded by an active neighborhood association. Next Lincoln Park event, let’s use advance publicity to draw people from the neighborhood to the event.

This meet’s saint was Nancy Coker: she contacted me in advance to volunteer, worked registration, ran both courses and retrieved controls. All hail Nancy! Thanks also to my friend Ron Gardner for working registration and Ludwig Hill, Jeff Brucker and Cute Mike, and Jeff Brodsky for retrieving controls. Many hands made light work and we were out of the park by 10 a.m. as the cloud cover evaporated.
